Defending and promoting the rights of the child

In the eyes of the law, we are all equal
DEFENDING THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD

A COMMITMENT TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE CHILD

Each child has fundamental rights in terms of care, education, justice, social protection, etc. The Defender of Rights defends these rights and makes them known. The rights of children are recognised by law and are enshrined in the International Convention on the Rights of the Child. In France, the Defender of Rights is the organisation appointed by the United Nations to ensure that these rights are upheld. Its work is based on a dual mission, to both protect and promote the rights of the child. In particular, it ensures that “the best interests of the child” are respected, meaning that the best interests of the child are considered to be paramount and take priority over anybody else. In addition, the Defender of Rights ensures that children are not discriminated against and that they are involved in decisions and initiatives affecting them.

The Defender of Rights, Claire Hédon, is assisted by the Children’s Defender, Eric Delemar, to accomplish this mission. The Defender of Rights and the Children’s Defender may be contacted by anybody who finds that a situation violates the rights of a child or a young person.

ONE INSTITUTION, 5 AREAS OF OPERATION

“The Defender of Rights upholds rights and freedoms”

Article 71-1 of the Constitution

The Defender of Rights is an independent institution responsible for defending individual rights and freedoms within the framework of 5 areas of expertise determined by law:

- Defence of the rights of users of public services
- Defence and promotion of the rights of the child
- Combating discrimination and promoting equality
- Respect for the ethics of security
- Orientation and protection of whistleblowers

To carry out its mission, the Defender of Rights:

- handles the claims addressed to it by offering appropriate solutions;
- acts in favour of equal access to rights for all through information, training, the development of partnerships and the proposal of reforms.

30% of claims received on the rights of the child relate to child protection
Delegates: providing a unique local service

The Defender of Rights relies on a network of almost 550 delegates

The delegates of the Defender of Rights are present throughout the national territory. Anyone seeking assistance in asserting their rights can contact them free of charge at more than 870 centres in mainland France and overseas: Maison de la Justice et du Droit (MJD), Point d’accès au droit (PAD), prefectures, town halls, etc.

Delegates can:

- Listen to what you have to say
- Guide you through the process
- Help you assert your rights
- Forward your file to the head office

80% of the claims of the Defender of Rights are received by delegates within their clinic
